Profile

Fifth-year Ph.D. candidate in Economics at IIT Roorkee, working at the juncture of macroeconomic development, productivity, and firm and labour-market dynamics. My primary research examines firms' labour-market power (monopsony and wage markdowns) within and across industries, and the (mis)allocation of labour in Indian organised manufacturing, using the plant-level Annual Survey of Industries. I am also interested in globalisation, industrial economics, and the production theory underlying empirical IO, and I welcome collaboration related to my thesis topic.

Education

- 2021–2026 (expected): Ph.D. in Economics, IIT Roorkee, India.
Thesis: Market Power and Allocation of Labor in Indian Organised Manufacturing Industries (supervisor: Prof. Falguni Pattanaik).
- 2019–2021: M.A. Economics, University of Hyderabad, India.
- 2016–2019: B.A. (Hons.) Economics, Khallikote Autonomous College, Berhampur, India.
